THE KING OF PINE

A New Hode of Casting Casson.

From the Zeston Free Press.

Charles E. Houck, a former Eastonian, now living at Idlewild in Alleghny county, has patentied a mode of making casson which promises to be a big thing for him, and his friends have reasion to congratulate him. The great trouble in making cannon is that if a flaw occur; in the reating the entire cannon is lost, together with all the time and labor spent upon it. To obviate this, Mr. Hanck takes out his patent. He first bores a steel timb the size of gun fiesired. If this tube is defective then only that much time and labor is lost. If it is not detective a steel breech is put on, and then about the tube and breech is run motion castions or steel, as desired, to complete the shape of the gun. The patent is deemed valuable. Mr. Hanck has received an offer from the Dynamited Cannon Company, in which the gavernment is interested. A party has also offered $700s for the right to sell in Cannola: Mr. Hanck has the the offers under advisement, and that after he sells he will buy a farm in Northampton or Lehijah county and then with his areat go to Europe to sell his patent there. Mr. Hanck is a brother of John J. Hauck and Will am Hanck of Easton.

I have traveled a great deal in Autorica, and almost at the while incognite. My experience is that, though a title may be a passport into some circles of society, it is on the whole a drawback among young people. It subjects its possessor to two sorts of annoyance—that which arises from the common dislike of arlatocratic eminence and has which comes from quite general doubt as to its genuinences."
